HOW MUCH DO I NEED?

Here are some general suggestions. To determine quantities, multiply the number of table seats by the number given in the table to the right. Add up your table totals, then divide the total by the quantity sold per case to arrive at the number of cases you need.

Choose a shape
Rim to center ratios affect presentation and food portions. Consider these carefully.
1. Wide rim plates with smaller centers showcase small portion sizes but require more tabletop space.
2. Medium rim plates are more versatile and balanced.
3. Narrow rim plates give you maximum serving space and a sense of portion value.
4. Coupe shapes have no rims and a contemporary look.

Choose a style
Simple and clean or decorative and ornate, it’s a matter of opinion.
1. Plain rim plates allow the focus to be on the food.
2. Sculptured rim plates provide design and visual interest, and can be coordinated with flatware and other tabletop service items.

Choose a color
Subtle differences can have a big impact on your overall look; all of them good.
1. Porcelain dinnerware has a bright white color.
2. Stoneware is generally off-white or eggshell color.
3. American white refers to stoneware with an eggshell color.

Front-of-house reminder: if you offer banquet or catering service, ask us about plate covers matched with your dinnerware selection to ensure a proper fit.

Back-of-house reminder: when purchasing your dinnerware, remember to consider dish caddies, lowerators and warewashing racks.

TABLETOP ACCESSORIES

From molded trays to condiment and napkin dispensers, the tabletop items you keep on hand and display on your tables can help set the right mood and make every dining experience go more smoothly for both the customers and the servers. Our vast selection of products allow for you to create a tabletop setting that is both aesthetically pleasing and highly functional for all.

The key to many tabletop and service items is the ingenuity they use to make mundane dining tasks seamless and easy. For example, serving trays with quiet, non-slip bottom liners prevent breakage and keep the clamor of glasses and dishes to a minimum. Accessories such as salt and pepper refillers, and squeeze dispenser funnels ensure that your tabletop condiment holders are full when your customer uses them, preventing additional trips to the kitchen.

Sometimes tabletop accessories are eye-catching items that can add color, texture and visual appeal to your table presentations. Look for whimsical ways to present both formal and less formal foods. Appetizer and side dishes can be served in a variety of ways, and we have many decorative and functional options from which to choose. Foodserver tools that enhance tabletop service presentation include crumb sweepers, cheese graters, and tip trays. These tools can add a smile to the dining experience, which is welcome at any table.

The tabletop setting and table presentation is one of the first things that catches your customer’s eye, either just before receiving menu in hand, or just after. As your menu is an integral part of the first impression you make when seating diners, it is essential that you choose the menu cover that best complements the décor and ambiance of your establishment. Once the meal is complete, our stylish check presenters and tip trays will help make lasting final impressions on diners.

Did you know?
The size, shape and positioning of your table-tent marketing pieces greatly affects how eyes naturally fall on them. Position your most profitable or newest items in the center of your other table-tent marketing pieces.

Keep the line moving
Diners in busy cafeteria-style settings expect to move through the line quickly and efficiently. Being organized with supplies to make this happen is a must. Fast food and café trays, flatware holders, and napkin and straw dispensers are all key components necessary in keeping the line moving. Dispensers designed specifically for certain condiments come in different shapes, sizes, and colors, made from both glass and plastic alike.

Add pizzazz
Sometimes tabletop accessories are eye-catching items that can add color, texture and visual appeal to your table presentations. Look for whimsical ways to present both formal and less formal foods. Appetizer and side dishes can be served in a variety of ways, and we have many decorative and functional options from which to choose. There are a surprising number of things to consider when choosing glassware for your hungry and thirsty guests. For example, heat-treated glassware, though a bit more expensive, gives you a longer service life; beer mugs and specialty glasses, rather than pint glasses, can earn you slightly higher profits; and a wine glass with a larger bowl is more appealing and improves the taste of the vintage. While the choices are many, the goal is the same: set the right mood and improve the dining experience by presenting glassware well-suited to the refreshment it contains. Allow us to help you sort through all the good choices you’re about to see.

Tumblers – From water goblets to beer glasses, tumblers have a flat bottom with no stem or handle. These will make up a large part of your glassware inventory.

Stemware – A bowl and a base separated by a long stem; the size and style of stemware you choose depends partly on personal preference and partly on how it will enhance the experience. For example, fluted stemware showcases the bubbles of champagne in a way other stemware cannot.

Specialty – These run the gamut, from glass coffee mugs with handles to small liqueur or shot glasses. The idea here is often smaller quantities and fanciful presentation.

After washing, always allow your glassware to air-dry and cool before putting it back in service. When bussing tables, don’t place flatware in glasses in the bus tub, as this stresses the glass and may cause chipping and breakage while the tub is carried. Also, unless pieces are specifically designed for it, avoid stacking glassware by nesting the pieces together. This will also reduce the life of your glass.

And for the best brew experiences, use your beer mugs and glasses strictly for beer. Any residue from other beverages will spoil the full flavor. Finally, when washing your beer glasses in automated glass washers, if too much sanitizer is used in the rinse cycle, the beer may go flat, and so might your draft beer profits.

Our glassware section also includes a variety of decanters and pitchers for serving and refilling beverages. These containers are available in different styles and capacities, made from glass or plastic. You can complement your outdoor patio dining plastic dinnerware collection with plastic tumblers and drinkware. Choose from stylish patterns and colors, and prevent the dangerous possibility of broken glass.

Determining your flatware pattern begins with making the choice of traditional, formal, simple or contemporary style. The style and shine of the flatware you choose helps frame your place setting and set the mood for a great dining experience. The feel and weight of each piece connects your guests to your culinary creations in the most personal way. Whatever your preference and style, we’ll help you find the perfect flatware pattern to both complement and impact your tabletop presentation.

Handle with care

Presoak in plastic containers for a maximum of 15 minutes with a presoak solution that contains the proper amount of chlorine. Too much chlorine causes stains or corrosion. Change the presoak solution frequently.

Wash in an upright position to avoid spotting. High-temp washing with an approved detergent is best for flatware cleaning and life. Rinse your flatware with clean hot water — about 180°F. Dry immediately after rinsing, as extended exposure to moisture may cause rusting and pitting.

Low-temp dish machines (under 135°F) will not soften and remove fats and grease. They also use a sanitizing agent that can cause staining and corrosion.

Detarnish if your flatware becomes discolored from hard water deposits or extended contact with food soils. Scrub the flatware in a solution of 1/4 cup vinegar to 3/4 cup water to help remove buildups.

How much do I need?

The table to the right is based on pieces in active use. Your needs might vary. Allow for 25% more than this table recommends for reserve inventory. Multiply your number of seats by the number listed for each piece to determine what you will need for active service.

FREYA 18/0 by Walco

PREMIUM STEAK KNIFE
This beautifully chiseled steak knife handle is constructed of a pakkawood material which consists of hardwood veneers fused with plastic resins to provide a long-lasting, strong, durable and moisture-resistant finish. The forged stainless steel full-tang blade is double riveted with a bolster to provide exceptional balance and substance.

SHARP NEW THINKING IN STEAK KNIVES
Many are choosing to replace the dinner knife in their flatware assortment with a steak knife. This serves two purposes: it reduces the cost of the table setting, and it can help define your tabletop.

When deciding, consider the following:
• Steak knife proportions may differ from other pieces in your place setting, so check your sizes.
• Washing a wood handle in your dishwasher reduces its life.
